WHAT TIME IS IT, KATIE !

LOTS OF FUN AT THE EXPENSE OF THE VERMONT SCHOOLMARM.

Miss Gillotte, of East Randolph, Vt., Is Very "Tired" Receiving Letters by the Bushel-She Is an Fair a Girl as the Green Mountain State Possesses-Her rness Has Been Demonstrated.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] East RANDOLPH, Vt., Dec. 6.—About the most "tired" girl in Vermont to-day is Miss Katie Gillette, of East Randolph, who wrote the note and poked it away in under the tail of a dressed turkey that fell into Mayor O'Brien's hands.

But "tired" is no name for it. Katie is weary, sick and disgusted at the unlooked for and sudden notoriety which she and the kind-hearted Mayor have attained.

The pretty little gold watch which she has tied to a blue ribbon and carries in her bosom has turned to ashes and dust in her mouth, so to speak.

Bushels of letters from all over New England-letters till you can't rest-letters with every mail, till the good-natured and long - suffering John Buzzell, young and handsome stage driver, who carries the mail-bag every day from Royalton up through the valley to East Bethel, South Randolph, East Randolph and Brookfield, seventeen miles, is kicking like a steer at its weight. John says this thing has gone on about long enough. But John is not so weary as Katie.

An Evening World man called on her a her home the other evening and found her way down in the slough of despond. Her other, however, feels more keenly than Katie herself this sudden blow at the happiness of their quiet home.

William Gillette, the father, a sturdy, old Vermont farmer, is more philosophic, as men usually are. He says:

"Waal, Kate, jest let 'em talk and blow;
they am't got nothin' better to do; but, mind you, don't go and send that watch back to the Mayor when he's been so kind. You jest keep still, and they'll stop talking about you."

You."
This sensible advice doesn't console Katie

This sensible advice doesn't console Katie a bit, and she answers:

"I don't see what I've done that I should be called a 'forward girl' and 'Vermont schoolmarm' (emphasizing the 'marm'), and accased of 'begging presents of strangers, 'and 'playing them for suckers.' Oh, dear; Oh, dear! what have I done? I didn't mean it: indeed, I didn't. It was only as a joke, just for fun, to see if anything would come of it," and the poor girl broke forth in sobs.

Katie most indignantly protested that she had not sent a note begging for old clothes and that she had not asked for and had not received any gold-plated earrings. These were ''cruel newspaper lies, "she said.

"Why, her ears ain't even punched," her mother assured the reporter.

Katie asserted that the only proceeds she had received from her turkey notes was the gold watch from the Mayor.

Pretty soon Katie's causin, a bright-faced little chap, came in from the village postoffice with both arms full of papers and letters, which he tossed into Katie's lap. There was at least a pack of them and they brought more than a peck of trouble for the afflicted girl.

Here is a letter from Clinton, Mass.:

Here is a letter from Clinton, Mass.:

DEAR MISS GILLETTE: Last evening as I sat in my room by the fire reading the evening paper. I noticed a short article entitled "Mayor O'Brien's Turkey." I thought it a very funny heading for a newspaper article, and so, being interested, I read it through from beginning to end, and to say that I was pleased would but poorly express my feelings; and, being a young Democrat from Vermont myself, it struck me very forcibly, indeed.

I thought to myself that young lady has some bright ideas of her own, although I am sorry to say that they are not all correct, as I will try and prove to you.

say that they are not all correct, as I will try and prove to you.

Your mistake is an excusable one, for the reason that your surrounding Republican companions are so many that their ideas can but predominate and force the few Democratic ideas that may choose to arise into the shade, but as the time came on Nov. 6 when the few took command of the many in National affairs, I hope you will allow for just once, on this second day of December, the few Democrats in Vermont to be held higher in your esteem than the many Republicans.

Although a perfect stranger to you, I could not in justice to myself and my fellow-Democrats, who are buried under a dark cloud at present which we hope to be able to lift in the future, allow myself to see you so misinformed in regard to our generosity, and so send you by this mail a little token, which I trust you will accept, although coming from one of the late lamented party, one who was a Democrat in New York, and is still a Democrat in old Massachusetts.

I send it because I admire your wit and your

I send it because I admire your wit and your briget ideas expressed in your letter, and because Journet a true Vermont lady and one to be admired and appreciated by all who have the right to call you friend.

Hoping you will accept this little tribute I send you in the spirit in which it is sent, &c. Accompanying the letter was a bottle of perfumery and on the label was written:

DEMOCRATIC PERFUMERY. Prepared Expressly REPUBLICAN USE.

Katle could stand the letters, but the papers she received just broke her all up. Some were marked copies and some were not. She hurried through the unmarked copies to see if they contained some new attack upon her fair reputation. Up in the corner of one paper was written.

paper was written:
"What time is it, Katie?" and on another.

"In what part of the bird did you put that note?"

Katie is a nice girl. She teaches the village school at East Randolph this Winter, boards at home, gets $7 a week and has fifty pupils in about twenty-five different classes. She has worried herself almost sick over her present troubles and had at one time serious thoughts of giving up her school, but will probably pull through all right.

Katie has a fresh and attractive face, rather long-featured, but pretty; her light auburn hair, gray eyes and shapely head are such as any woman might envy, and her slender form is still girlish in spite of her twenty-two years. She is extremely modest and lady-like in behavior. Her six months' experience as a typewriter in New York City did not spoil the unaffected naturalness of her ways, and best of all, she is a good girl.

If Mayor O'Brien had scratched over the whole State of Vermont he couldn't have found a nicer and more deserving recipient for a Thanksgiving present than Miss Katie Gillette.

Anna Moore's Mother Reproved Her for Staying Out Late.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] WATERTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Miss Anna M. Moore, the pretty and accomplished daughter of H. W. Moore, a well-known hardware merchant of Antwerp, this county, committed suicide in a fit of anger, after having been scolded by her mother for remaining out until 10 o'clock last The girl was eighteen years of age, and idolized by her parents. purpose of visiting a young lady friend in the village. Her mother asked her to remain at home, but she dressed and went.

When she returned at 10 o'clock the family had retired. The mother arose, however, and, going to Anna's room, upbraided her severely for remaining out so late. After Mrs. Moore had turned to leave the room Anna arose in a passion, went across the hall to a closet, got a revolver, a 22 calibre, and placing the muzzle to her right temple, fired. The report of the pistol aroused Mr. Moore, who rushed upstairs, but fell fainting to the floor when he found what had taken place. Anna lived about three hours after the shooting, but did not regain consciousness.

His Mortal Foc, Mr. Bramlett, Has Jus Drowned Two of His Adherents. [SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.]

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 6 .- The drowning of the two negroes, Tim Smith and John Coleman, and the brutal whipping of Hulda Smith and Jim Smith by a lynching party were the results of a feud between two white men in Wilkes County. A well-to-do farmer named Bramlett had a quarrel about two years ago with a man named Cade, who operates the local cotton-gin. Early of the way as well as the suspected negroes. Cade was notified in time and fied the country. The two negroes were given refuge in the penitentiary stockade of Mr. Henry Hills, but they were taken therefrom, carried to the bank of Broad River at a point where a bluff rises twenty feet above the water's level, and after being weighed down with stones were thrown in. The mob then visited the home of the Smiths and lashed Hulda Smith and Jim Smith.

HE WAS SHOT WHILE HE SLEPT. Pistol Tied to His Wife's Kuee Cause Her Arrest.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] NORWICH, Conn., Dec. 5.—There will be called for trial on Monday, before the Superior Court of Tolland County, the case of Mrs. George Johnson, who is charged with murder in the first degree. George Johnson awoke one night in April with exeruciating pains in his abdomen. His wife had gone, but shortly afterwards she returned with a neighbor, named Howard, whom she had hastily summoned. Johnson was told that he had been shot while he slept, and his wife that he had been shot while he slept, and his wife proceeded to give the details. At 11 o'clock she arose to get some medicine and while in another room heard footsteps upon the veranda, followed by the report of a revolver.

Sheriff Fisk put Mrs. Johnson under arrest. Tied to her knee was a flannel bag containing a 32-calibre revolver, with one barrel empty. She said she had often been chased by tramps while visiting neighbors after dark and had armed herself.

Both she and Mr. Johnson had been previovaly married. Her first husband she buried at Toliand several years ago under what is claimed by some to have been peculiar circumstances. The State's Attorney claims to have a complete chain of circumstantial evidence against her.

Overcome by Good Fortune and Liquor.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD,] KANSAS CITY, Dec. 6.-There is a lodginghouse at 553 Walnut street and the proprietor is L. Follender. A week ago he received de spatches from Paris and from points in Rouma-nia announcing that his wealthy uncle had died in Roumania, leaving a fortune of $2,000,000 in cash and $5,000,000 in bonds and negotiable in cash and $5,000,000 in bonds and negotiable securities to him and his brother. The Follenders are Roumanians. Restraining any desire he may have had to borrow money on the strength of these despatches, Mr. Follender permitted his friends and regular lodgers to congratulate him to such an extent that when the police and doctors were cashed in they suspected that he had attempted suicide. He explained that he had taken morphine because the Kansas City fireworks would not let him sleep. Two of the regular lodgers walked him about the streets the rest of the night to overcome the effects of the morphine. He will start for Paris as soon as the news of his good fortune is confirmed.

Burned Crude Oil in the Locomotiva.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] FINDLAY, O., Dec. 6.-An experiment with Ohio crude petroleum as a fuel was made on the Toledo, Columbus and Southern Railway yesterday which was so successful that the engines on this road will be at once arranged to use oil as a fuel instead of coal. The engine drew a special train containing the officers of the road from Toledo to this city and back again, using but two barrels of oil for the trip of eighty-six miles. Ohio petroleum costs only fifteen cents a barrel.

ADDIE STANTON'S LAWYER PROMISES A SENSATION.

He Says Daly Will Be in Court, but Doubts If He Will Prescente. The Old Camble Talked Too Much Yesterday and Is Sick To-Day-More Facts About Addie Stan-ton's Very Remarkable History.

Tecumseh Pearce, Phil Daly's undersized but devoted colored attendant, responded to an Evening World reporter's ring at the door of the Strathmore Apartment House, corner of Fifty-second street and Broadway, this morning, and told the caller that Mr.

Daly could not be seen. "Why not?" asked the reporter.

"Because he received too many visitors and talked too much yesterday. In conse quence he was feverish and restless and unable to sleep a wink last night.

"Dr. Smith left positive orders that no one should be admitted to see him to-day." Was Inspector Byrnes here last night?'

"Was Inspector Byrnes here last night?"

"No, but Mr. Daly expects him this morning," concluded Tecumseh.

Police Capt. Rielly looked as fresh as a June rose this morning, although he has been up and about continuously for the last forty-eight hours trying to find some clue to the men who attempted to hold up the old gambler in that Fourth avenue flat.

"I have absolutely no news to give you," he said, in answer to the reporter's queries.

"How is the Stanton and the Hammond this morning?"

"As well as can be expected under the circumstances. They occupy different cells, sleep on a hard board and order their meals from a restaurant."

"Have they any money?"

"Not a cent, "They had not a cent or a bit of jewelry, nor was there any money or jewelry found in their apartments when they were arrested," said the Captain.

"Stanton has a pretty good wardrobe," he added.

Since that incorporation position wounder.

Since their incarceration neither woman has been allowed to see any visitor except their counsel. Several women and one or two men have called to see them, but were two men have called to see them, but were not permitted to do so.

Lawyer Le Barbier, their legal adviser, said to an Evening World reporter to-day:

"I do not believe that Daly will prosecute my clients. I do not see how he can have the cheek to go against them at all."

"Then you know positively that there have been dealings between him and the Stanton woman?"

"Then you know positively that there have been dealings between him and the Stanton woman?"

"I must refuse to answer that question now, but you be in court when the case comes up to-morrow morning, and I promise you you will hear some astonishing facts. That is all I can or will say to-day."

It "Do you think Mr. Daly will be in Court to-morrow?" asked the reporter.

"Yes. I think he will be there to-morrow," he concluded in a tone that meant, "but not after to-morrow."

From other sources more of the woman Stanton's history was learned to-day.

When she was running the house 36 Lexington avenue Louis Bishop shot himself there. The affair caused quite a sensation at the time. At that time she was known as Mrs. Edgecomb.

After that, at different times, she has lived at 93 Third avenue, on West Thirty-eighth street, 200 East Twenty-seventh street, where she was known as Addie St. Clair; in West Twelfth street, near Eighth avenue, where she called herself Nina Earl, at 144 East Fourteenth street, and at the Hotel Dam, where she passed as Mrs. Martin Lewis.

She used to wear the bullet which nearly ended Bishop's hife in a gold setting about her need. She is an opium smoker, and the need of the drug is affecting her physically now.

EVENING WORLD's statement that it was the first paper to appear on the street with the President's message on Monday last, and by implication to claim that honor for itself.

"Tell the truth" is The EVENING WORLD's motto when speaking of itself, as well as on other matters. Now, what are the facts in this case? The press of The EVENING WORLD, with the editions containing the President's message, started at precisely 1, 42 p. M., Monday, Dec. 3. The paper was out upon the street immediately, a release having been received from Washington. This is a fact of record.

BRIDGEPORTS NEW POST-OFFICE SITE.

Business Men and Property Owners Deeply Interested as to the Location. [SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 6.-The special in this morning's World relative to the location of the new Post-Office building was read here with ntense interest.

Business men and real-estate owners are disussing the subject enthusiastically. The sentiment from all sides is that the location is the wisest and best.

A year ago, in Oct. 1887, when the lease expired of the present Post-Office building, the site on the corner of Cannon and Broad streets was offered to the Government. It was found that to renovate the old St. John's Building, corner of Cannon and Broad, would make the rent higher than the present building on Bank street.

rent higher than the present building on Bank street.

A lease, therefore, was made out for five years and some people imagine that the Post-Office will remain where it is until this lease expires.

This, however, is not the case, as a clause in the lease provides that the Government can terminate it at any time.

The new site is not far from the depot. It is convenient for business men and to the banks. Property on all sides will be benefited and the building can be approached on all four sides.

BAD ACCIDENT ON THE LAKE SHORE.

Trains Collide While Running Forty Miles an Hour Near Youngstown. [SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

Youngstown, O., Dec. 5.—A terrible wreck occurred five miles north of here at 7 o'clock his morning on the Sharon branch of the Lake Shore road, a mixed passenger train colliding with a locomotive on a curve, both running at forty miles an hour.

The engineer of the light locomotive heard the train, but supposed it was on the adjoining track of the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio road. Conductor James Rennedy, of the passenger train, was instantly killed, and James McCoy, fireman, and Patrick Riely, brakeman, were trainly injured. They were brought here and placed in the hospital.

Engineer Albert Lindsay was badly injured, but will recover. Both engines and ten cars were wrecked, involving a loss of $10,000 to the Company. The conductor and the injured men all reside here.

Gen. King to Be Ranoue

BALTIMORE, Dec. 6.-The banquet to Gen. dam E. King to-night at the Rennert House promises to be a big affair. Two hundred and fifty guests will be present, among them and fifty guests will be present, among them many distinguished politicians and officials from New York, Washington and other cities. Gen. King rendered good service to his party in stumping the doubtful States during the late campaign, in company with Mr. Blaine, and the banquet is intended as a mark of appreciation from his Maryland friends of the G. O. P. The letters of acceptance and declination received up to this time from leading Republicans speak in glowing terms of Gen. King, many of them going so far as to say that he contributed more towards Mr. Harrison's success than any other speaker. Mr. Blaine has not been heard from, but it is not probable that he will accept. Gen. Felix Agnus will preside.

He Was No Football Crank

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.]
BOSTON, Dec. 6.—An item of $480 in the financial report of the Harvard football committee requires some explanation. It is a bill pre-sented by a surgeon to Finlay, a member of the Varsity eleven, who had been injured while varity eleven, who had been injured while practising, for accompanying him to New York, where he went, towards the end of his convalescence, to witness the game at the Polo Grounds. Mr. Finlay understood that the surgeon accompanied him out of friendship and a desire to see the game, in which he was personally interested. The surgeon chose to construe the case as a matter of business, and made his charge accordingly, at the rate of $10 per hour for forty-eight hours, presenting his bill for $480 to the student. The football association assumed the indebtedness and paid the bill.

Another Big Railroad Pool.

[SPECIAL TO THE WOBLD.]
MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 6.—A cable despatch states that a petition has been signed in London by the shareholders of both the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railroads, asking the directors to stop hostilities and enter into a traffic agreement. In railroad circles here this is taken to mean that a pool, aggressive and defensive, will be entered into between the two great roads, which will materially affect the carrying traffic of the American roads with which they compate.

Burkhardsmaier was thirty-three years old and was formerly a cook at the Atlantic Garden. He lately purchased a saloon in the building from which he jumped to his death, paying $800 for the property. It proved a poor investment, and on finding that he had been duped out of his money he became first despondent and then deranged.

He leaves a wife and two children, with whom he formerly lived at 176 Orchard street.

A crowd quickly gathered about the place where the man's body had fallen, but the police were on hand, too, and the curious throng was kept back.

The crushed body was picked up and tenderly borne to the undertaking shop at 82 Stanton street.

A number of persons witnessed the act of this suicide and afterwards described in horrified accents how the body came whirling down from the lofty starting point while they stood powerless to prevent the tragedy.

ALICE CHESTER EXPLAINS.

her to Blackwell's Island to serve a sentence, and next by a leap from a window in the Tombs, was arraigned at the Essex Market Police Court this morning for the fourth attempt on her life, which she made on Monday by swallowing carbolic acid on a Third avenue car.

Alice is rather prepossessing in appearance, but shows plainly that she is of dissipated habits.

"Whenever I get drunk, "she said to Justice Duffy, "I feel like committing suicide."

"But, Judge, don't send me to prison, "she cried, her eyes filling with tears. "I'll never, never do it again."

"Well, you promised that before, "observed His Honor.

"Well, you promised that before," observed His Honor.

"But, Judge, I didd't intend to kill myself the last time," she explained. "I had a cold, and mistook the poison for cough medicine. For God's sake, have mercy on me! I have had trouble enough, and her sobs could be heard all over the court-room.

"I have no power to act in your case now," said the magistrate in a kinder tone. "My only course according to law is to hold you in default of $1,00 bail for trial."

The unfortunate girl said she had secured a situation in a Brooklyn millinery establishment, and begged again for a chance to reform. She was led off to prison weeping bitterly.

About six weeks ago his eyes began to trouble him, and on weeks ago his eyes began to trouble him, and on the advice of a physician he visited the Eye and Ear Hospital and had an operation performed. He suffered very much from the operation, and since has been more or less deranged.

At 5 o'clock his wife called him for breakfast, telling him it was time to go to work. The woman then noticed blood on the bedclothing and started out of the room for assistance. On her return she found the man unconscious. He was removed to St. Vincent's Hospital.

of District Assembly 135, k. of L., and the Miners' Federation did not meet in joint session this morning owing to the fact that the former had not yet agreed among themselves as to what policy to pursue in the joint meeting.

The Federation representatives came to an agreement early yesterday as to the stand they would take—namely, recommending the forming of one absolute national organization of miners and mine laborers.

These delegates are now waiting for the K. of L. delegates to enter the joint conference.

This morning they put in their leisure time in visiting the State institutions.

There will be no wrangle on our part, "said a Federation delegate this morning. We are unanimously in favor of one organizations so far as government is concerned, but there is going to be a hot contest in the Knights of Labor meeting to-day. The presence of Mr. Powderly here indicates that the Knights of Labor organization realizes that it is in danger of losing the entire miners' organization known as District Assembly 135.

The representatives of this body meet at Union Hall to-day in secret session. Mr. Powderly is with them. A discussion of the question of withdrawing from the K. of L. is of course in progress. If Mr. Powderly can muster sufficient force he will prevent it. Mr. Lewis, Grand Master of the District Assembly, leads the forces opposed to Mr. Powderly in this matter.

GREEN'S DAY OF SUSPENSE. NEW SCHOOL SCANDAL (?)

SCENES OF THE MURDER TRIAL.

A very large and at times excited audience watched the trial of Charles W. Green for the murder of Nicholas Goldenkirch in the Brooklyn Sessions Court this morning. As the close of the trial approaches interest in the fate of the wealthy real-estate agent increases in intensity.

The prisoner, Green, is unlike the major ity of people who have been tried for mur-der. He is neat in his dress, modest and quiet in his demeanor, and his actions during the trial have been those of a gentleduring the trial have been those of a gentleman. He also owns a great deal of property, and was a social lion in the Eastern District.
The calm but earnest way in which he told his story of what happened on the night of Goldenkirch's taking-off, and of the events leading up to it, has impressed everybody in his favor, and many expressed the hope that the verdict will not be "Guilty of murder in the first degree."

When Green entered the court-room all eyes were riveted on him, but the closest sorutiny failed to discover any sign that he had suffered musual mental strain.

Gen. Tracy opened the proceedings by summing up for the defendant. He defined der.

That Goldenkirch was killed by a bullet from a pistol held by Green was not denied. The question was: Was the killing justifiable or excusable?

If it was the result of a misfortune or an accident, it was excusable. Did the pistol go off in the struggle between the two men? If it did, then there must be an acquittal.

Green, he said, was in his own house with his family. He was defending himself against an intruder who had been warned not to come. It was a principle of the world that a man's house was his castle, and even a king might not enter. It was his right to say who should enter. No man had a right to enter the house.

should enter. No man had a right to enter the house.

When Goldenkirch called that night he was warned away. He refused, and Green had the right to defend his home by any and all means. Goldenkirch was a trespasser who had been forbidden to enter, but in spite of this he forced his way into the house. Under these circumstances killing would be justifiable and proper.

After recess Assistant District-Attorney Clark made the closing address for the prosecution.

BROOKLYN NEWS. Hotel Guest Causes Ructions at an Unearthly Hour of the Morning. About 2.30 o'clock this morning Peter Gilsey engaged a room at the Mount Severn Hotel, on Washington street, Brooklyn. He got drunk and had been there but a short time when he commenced shouting and singing.

The porter, William Cummings, went to quiet him, when Gresen made a lunge at him with a knife and cut his cheek.

Cummings caught Gilsey around the waist and threw him down a flight of stairs.

He was taken to the hospital and then to court, where he was held for trial.

INTENSE INT'A L'ST IN THE CLOSING THOSE CHARGES AGAINST TRUSTEE EHLERS NOT SO AWPUT.

> He Talked Freely to Some Other Trustees, and Teld Them a Story or Two, and Now They Have Gone Back on Him-The Case Is Not a Bit Like the Soulard Scandal-What Mr. Ehlers Says.

THE EVENING WORLD presents to its rea ers to-day the sum and substance of the serious, almost awful charges brought against School Trustee E. M. I. Ehlers, of the Ninth Ward, about which the School Commissioners were so very secret yesterday.

Col. Ehlers and his fellow-Commiss Dr. McNamara and Mr. Seaman, who constitute the majority in the Ninth Ward Board of Trustees had been duly and thoroughly investigated by the By-Law Committee of the Board of Education on an indictment containing twelve counts, and the Comp had disagreed as to what their report should

Chairman Schmidt and Commissioners Guggenheimer and Sprague, the majority of the Committee, thought enough had been proven o make it imperative that the three trustees should be asked to resign, and in the interests should be asked to resign, and in the interests of the Ward and for harmony they thought the accusing minority of that Board of Trustees. Messra. Benedict and Tinadale, should also resign.

Commissioner Crary didn't, but he failed to formulate his own opinion. Commissioner Holt, however, made a minority report in which he declared that even if all the alleged facts charged against the trustees were true, they constituted no offense sufficient to warrant the request for the resignations of the culprits.

rant the request for the resignations of the culprits.

That is the way the matter stood when the Board of Education met yesterday.

Commissioner Sprague threw a small bomb. He wanted the charges against Col. Ehlers, or at least four of the twelve counts in his indictment, reopened before the committee.

He declared that Col. Ehlers was a discredit to the school system. That the testing the control of the co in his indictment, reopened before the committee.

He declared that Col. Ehlers was a discredit to the school system. That the testimony taken by his Committee in secret session was unfit for the records of the Board that Col. Ehlers had disgraced his official ermine and, in short, that he was a very, very bad man.

He was voted down, however, by a vote of 9 to 7, the female members of the Board; being in the minority.

Of course, curiosity to know what were the awful misdeeds of Trustee Ehlers were strong, but the five commissioners who constitute the By-Law Committee were as dumb as oysters, and they alone held the secret.

Somebody, however, hinted that there was a woman in the case, and that eventually the case would read like the Soulard scandal. A morning paper stated this as a fact.

An Evenno Wonld reporter was told by Chairman Schmitt to-day that so far as concerned the statement that the charges of immorality against Col. Ehlers being like those in the Soulard case, it was due to Col. Ehlers to say that it was unrue.

No charge of personal impurity had been made against Col. Ehlers. Further than that Commissioner Schmitt would not say, on the ground that what information he had was gained in executive session of his Committee.

Col. Ehlers, a big. open-faced, jolly man of full habit, was found at his deak at the Masonic Temple. He is Grand Secretary of that Order for this State.

He laughed when asked what he had to say to the charges. Then he grew serious and thundered:

"Simply that I am as innocent of moral turpitude as a babe. If I have committed any offense it is telling stories to two or three men in private, not in public. Stories with a nub, for I am said to be quite a story-teller."

"Your case does not resemble the Soulard case, then?"

"You case does not resemble the Soulard case, then?"

"No, d—n it! There! I say a spade is a spade, you see. Not at all like that case. No laison here. The charges preferred by Benedict and Tinsdale against all three of us were neglect of duty and inefficienc were neglect of duty and inefficiency.

There were no specifications. The counts were made from the evidence aftercounts were made from the evidence afterwards taken.

The trouble grew out of the trial of Miss Pope, Principal of No. 3 female department. We supported her against Trustee Tinsdale. We were a majority. Miss Pope was fined finally by the Board of Education.

"Four counts are still charged against you personally, what are they?" asked the re-personally, what are they?" asked the reporter.

Col. Ehler laughed again and produced a document. It was his indictment.

"I am charged with having behaved improperly at Grammar School No. 3, male department, Christmas time, 1886. This is what I did. We were having the usnal 'Christmas racket' and 600 or 700 boys and many parents were assembled in the school with horns, tin pans, clappers, squeaks and other noisy things.

"Principal Sutherland was in the habit of introducing me to the school with a flattering speech, and this time I came prepared for him.

"When he got to praising my good qualities very hard I drew a big placard from under my coat and held it so that the boys could see it but the teacher couldn't.

It read like this:

It read like this I AM SOMETHING OF A LIAR MYSELF.

"Then I am charged with haranguing the girls of No. 3 about their not being permitted to occupy the new annex to the building and advising them to go home and ask their perents to intercede for them with the Board of Education.

'Third, they say that I made use of vulof Education.

"Third, they say that I made use of vulgar and obscene language about a female teacher. Well, I don't lie. I tell the truth. I said to one of the Trustees in private conversation. "Miss—is an old maid. She ought to get married. It would do her more good than anything *lse."

"The last charge is that I have deported myself in a manner tending to bring discredit on the system and under this head the evidence shows that once in a group of Commissioners and Trustees discussing the then recent appointment of Miss Dodge and Mrs. Agnew and some of the duties which Commissioners are supposed to perform, notably the going down into the furnace rooms under the schools; nosing around sewers and the like, I said something about Miss Dodge and her probable willingness to perform these duties, because she was strong, minded and something like a man in her qualities.

"This is the head and foot of mine offending," concluded the Shakespearian trustee.
"For being like other men I am a dam—nod secoundrel."
